LIVING ART

Creativity in balance with nature

Each landscape is an individual. Full of color, texture and form. I use many materials and plant species to create living art. Arranging specimen conifers with native shrubs and groups of perennials. Knowing how they relate to the environment and what the benefits are, while creating a pleasing display, are standard procedure for me. It is in the details that determine the success of a landscape. From the balance of microorganisms and insects to the arrangement of flower petals that catch your eye. Every detail counts, even the ones we tend not to think about. That is where landscape meets art.
